China, Taiwan, Korea and other economies in East Asia followed routes similar to Japan. It is often said that their rapid economic progress is due to their willingness to make good use of the global market economy, and rightly so. But that process was greatly helped by the emphasis all of these countries placed on basic education. Widespread participation in a global economy would have been hard to accomplish if people could not read or write.

[23~24] 다음 글의 주제로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.

23. Cross your fingers! Then maybe your wish will come true. Crossing the fingers comes from an old custom. The custom began with the sign of the cross. Long ago, a cross was a symbol of good luck. Two people would make the sign together when making a wish. One person would make a wish and hold out his index finger. The other person would then cross the finger with his own index finger. The custom of two people crossing fingers has died out. But people keep crossing their own fingers for good luck. [2점]

① kinds of superstition
② symbols of good luck
③ ways of crossing fingers
④ the definition of good luck
⑤ the origin of crossing fingers

24. If you've ever wondered what life past the age of 100 is like, then ask George Stratton. He is an energetic and youthful 102-year-old man from Wisconsin, U.S.A. So what's his secret for living a long life? First, he reduces stress by not worrying about things too much. "A laugh is better than a pill any time," he says. Although he tries to keep in good shape, he believes relaxation is important, too. He also eats healthily and doesn't have snacks. He stopped smoking cigars twenty years ago and drinks alcohol only in moderation. He thinks old age is wonderful. [3점]

31. 다음 글의 요지로 가장 적절한 것은? [2점]

Today, people are under more pressure than in the past. Very few people have "a job for life." More and more companies are reducing the number of workers they employ. That's one reason why people change jobs more often. Another reason people change is that they are not satisfied. They may want better pay, a bigger office, or a more important position. When thinking about a new job, try to follow your decision. Listen to yourself and follow your own advice. Ask what kind of job you would really enjoy. Perhaps you want to start your own company and be your own boss. Go for it!

This is a word made from a blend of two words. In the early twentieth century, when motor cars first became popular, people would sometimes travel long distances. When they needed to stay overnight, instead of going to a hotel where they might not find a place to park the car, they would go to this place. This not only provided lodging for people, but also a place to park a car in front of a room. At the beginning, its rooms were not joined as they are today. Instead, each room was in an individual cottage.

35. 달에 관한 설명 중, 다음 글의 내용과 일치하지 않는 것은? [3점]

Is the full moon twice as bright as the half moon? That would seem to make sense. But the full moon is really nine times brighter than the half moon. Why such a big difference? The reason is quite simple. It has to do with the moon's bumpy terrain. The moon reflects light from the sun. A smooth surface reflects light better than a bumpy one. Mountains and valleys cause darker shadows. When the half moon is seen from earth, it is the bumpier area of the moon. When the moon is full, there is more smooth surface reflecting the light.

But if this is so, how can we explain accounts from Arctic and Antarctic explorers who, in spite of exposure to very cold conditions, did not catch cold? Then, upon returning to the warmth and comforts of civilization, they caught colds immediately. Another evidence may be found in the experiences of prisoners of World War Ⅱ Nazi camps. During the late autumn and winter months, prisoners were forced to take showers and then stand wet and naked in the open air. They fully expected to catch colds; to their surprise, most did not.

A very thirsty crow suddenly saw a water pitcher. Relieved and with great joy she flew swiftly down to it. Although the pitcher contained water, its level was so low that she was unable to reach it. So she tried to overturn the pitcher, hoping at least to drink from its spilled contents; but it was too heavy for her. At length, looking around, she saw some pebbles nearby. Picking them up, one by one, she dropped them into the pitcher. Slowly, the water rose to the top of the pitcher and she was at last able to satisfy her thirst.

I went to stay with friends in Seoul for the weekend. The weather was beautiful and I took some photos of the old palace. When I got back home, I went to a local photographer's to get the film developed. The shop owner told me they would be ready the following day.

I picked the photos up on my way home from work. As soon as I reached my house, I opened the packet. I was really looking forward to seeing the photos I had taken. But all twenty-four photos showed something light brown and completely out of focus. The shop must have mixed up my photos with someone else's, I thought.

The following morning I called the photographer's and complained angrily to the owner about the mix-up. I left the photos with him and he said he would look into it. I agreed to call back after work.

At 5:30, I turned up at the photographer's, once again looking forward to seeing the 'proper' photos this time. To my surprise, the owner handed back the same photos as before, explaining that I had not held the camera properly. I had taken twenty-four photos of my own right cheek!
