Your station has lost me and my family as viewers on Thursday evening. We were so offended by your new situation comedy show "Hold the Plow" that we will avoid your station from now on. Since the program was about rural life and we come from that background, we eagerly tuned in the show. But it was a complete failure! The program portrayed farmers and rural life in a silly way without ever letting viewers know the true life in the country. Other viewers who know rural life will undoubtedly share my opinion.

It is difficult for foreign students to understand Americans, too. Americans use incomplete sentences. For example, they say, "Later" to mean "I'll see you later." 22. Throughout the centuries, people have tried to kill off rats because rats carry deadly diseases, damage crops, and destroy stored foods. Even though an individual rat may not live long, there are always more rats to replace it. Female rats give birth several times a year, each time producing as many as nine baby rats. 35. As many factories started to be built and cities grew, there were more and more jobs in city areas. As more people moved to cities for the jobs, they needed places to live in. Soon houses gave way to apartment buildings. Also, to provide goods and services for so many people, new businesses grew up in the cities. These new businesses also needed space, and unused land was hard to find. When most of the land was taken up, builders started to build in the only direction left — up! In the past the human race managed to live with war. Modern inventions have changed this. Either man will abolish war, or war will abolish man. For the present, it is nuclear weapons that cause the most serious danger. Even if we succeed in abolishing nuclear weapons, however, our work to keep peace will not be done. It will never be done until we have succeeded in abolishing war. To do this, we need to persuade mankind to settle international conflicts in a new way, not by force, but by agreement in accordance with principles of law.

Pete Rose, the famous baseball player, and I have never met. But he taught me a valuable lesson. Pete was being interviewed in spring training the year he was about to break Ty Cobb's hits record. One reporter asked him, "Pete, you only need 78 hits to break the record. How many at-bats do you think you'll need to get the 78 hits?" Without hesitation, he said, "78." The reporter yelled back, "Ah, come on, Pete, you don't expect to get 78 hits in 78 at-bats, do you?" Mr. Rose said, "Every time I step in the batter's box, I expect to get a hit! It is a positive expectation that has gotten me all of the hits."

When I thought about Pete Rose's philosophy and how it applied to everyday life, I felt a little ashamed. I was an adequate salesperson. I was not so bad as a father. I immediately decided that being okay was not enough! I wanted to be a great salesperson, a great father. I changed my attitude into one of positive expectation, and the results were amazing. I got a big bonus for my sales. I also won Coach of the Year in my son's baseball league.
